Energising local economies: partnerships for prosperous communities

In the current economic climate, creating the right environment for economic development is vital to countries and communities. Local government increasingly plays an important part in this, as one of the main promoters and facilitators of local economic development across the Commonwealth. More local governments are being given the responsibilities and powers for local economic development - from strategic planning to create the right environment, infrastructure and skills to encourage development and inward investment, to supporting micro-business and promoting youth enterprise, and local procurement of goods and services.

Many local authorities in the Commonwealth can demonstrate how their actions have helped energise their local economies: others are just beginning to focus on this as an important responsibility to foster the prosperity and well-being of their communities.

This conference will:

- help promote the role of local government in local economic development
- highlight the role of central/state government in setting the national policy framework and an enabling environment to ensure that local economic development supports national priorities
- consider the role of local authorities in energising local economies, including facilitating economic growth to tackle poverty and improve the quality of life of citizens
- look at ways in which councils are joining in partnerships with the private sector to boost inward investment, jobs and skills.

The conference will present a number of case studies that look at issues such as long-term visioning and planning, small business support, procurement, gender, skills development and the impact of HIV/AIDs, and offer study visits to some exciting and innovative local economic development projects in and around Cardiff.

The outcomes of the discussions will be drawn together as guidelines to support those involved in local government in developing and implementing strategies for local economic development, and after endorsement at the CLGF General Meeting will inform CLGF policy. They will be presented to Commonwealth Heads of Government for endorsement at their meeting in Perth later in 2011.

This is the sixth Commonwealth Local Government Conference and follows highly successful events including in Freeport, Grand Bahama in 2009, Auckland, New Zealand in 2007, and in Aberdeen, Scotland in 2005. The outcomes of these conferences have been endorsed by Commonwealth Heads of Governments and are helping central governments and local governments to strengthen their governance and democratic processes and to deliver better services.

Visiting Cardiff

Cardiff, the capital city of Wales in the UK, is one of Europe's fastest growing capital cities offering a vibrant mixture of activities, attractions and events. In 2008 it was European Capital of Culture. Situated on the Bristol Channel, Cardiff is a waterside city, with a freshwater lake which is controlled by a barrage. Cardiff is a flat city, surrounded by open countryside, and hills and valleys.

Travelling to Cardiff

There are direct flights to Cardiff via many European cites. You can also fly to London Heathrow and take a National Express Coach direct from the airport to Cardiff. Details about this and priority accommodation can be found on the conference website at www.clgc2011.org/delegateinformation.

Visas

Delegates are responsible for their own travel arrangements and documents. You may need to obtain a visa to visit the UK or for one of your transit countries. We advise that you do this well in advance to make sure that you receive your visa before travel as it may take up to three months to obtain visas.

CLGF: promoting local democracy in the Commonwealth

The Commonwealth Local Government Forum (CLGF) was set up in 1995 to promote and support local democracy in the Commonwealth. It promotes and strengthens democratic local government throughout the Commonwealth and encourages the exchanges of good practice – through capacity-building programmes and projects, through conferences, events, and research for knowledge and information sharing. It works with its members in Commonwealth countries to support the development of democratic values and good governance and improve the delivery of local government services.

CLGF is a membership organisation funded by membership subscriptions, and specific grants and donations. It has more than 170 members in 40 countries including ministries of local government, local government associations and individual councils. Research organisations and professional bodies can join as associate members.
